THOUGHT and COMMENT

North and South

The rift which existed between the northern and southern part of the state seems to be healing up with speed and in manner so that not even the scar will remain. Just why northern and southern California should not be able to agree on certain things or if that disagreement is only a state of the mind we are unable to say. Every since we have been in the state however we have heard well directed propaganda to the effect that the state was one and there was no north and no south but one big state. In fact that propaganda is the only thing that we have discovered that there might be or might have been any difference.

Evidence that we are one big state with mutual problems and one aim was again emphasized at the two day session of the California Development Association ending Thursday.

The San Francisco Examiner in reporting the final session of the convention says:

"State unity became a password to future progress yesterday as the prosperity of California, brought about by coordinated effort, was written into the records of the California Development Association.

"Hundreds of leading businessmen of the entire State heard a Los Angeles man tell of the beauty of San Francisco, of its remarkable development, of its future glories. And this same group, meeting in the Hotel St. Francis in the final day of the annual session, saw a Los Angeles man nominate, and a Los Angeles man move the unanimous election of R.R. Hale of San Francisco as president of the association for the coming year.

The convention passed into history as a far-reaching, concerted endeavor of the entire State to solve mutual problems through mutual aid."

Record to be Kept Of Peddlers Here

Hereafter it has been announced, all peddlers and agents will be asked to sign a questionnaire by the Better Business Bureau in Richmond. This questionnaire includes a list of questions that pry into the name of the company represented, the quality of its goods and the character of the firm.

This means, Marie Macdonald Jensen of the Bureau announced, that the people of Richmond will be protected as to the quality of goods they buy from peddlers or agents.

FARM SUBSIDY BILL REJECTED BY LARGE VOTE

Republicans And Democrats
Form Coalition to Defeat Bill
Aiding The Farmers

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, May 21.—Amid scenes of great disorder and confusion, a coalition of administration Republicans and conservative Democrats today defeated the Haugen farm subsidy bill by a vote of 212 to 167 in the House today.

Prospects of Congress passing legislation to aid hard-pressed agriculture were thus dealt a crushing blow. Republican leaders, however, declared that there still is a possibility of relief legislation being enacted, depending upon action taken by the Senate.

All proposals favoring subsidy for agriculture were doomed to failure by the House decision today. Legislation along the line supported by President Coolidge providing governmental aid to Farmer's Cooperative Associations through liberal credit to market their crops appears to be the most the farmers can expect.

Opponents of the Haugen bill, which had the backing of Representatives from the agriculture regions of the middle west and a sprinkling of Democrats, made their first thrust at the bill in an attempt to have it sent back to the agriculture committee for further consideration. This was voted down, 200 to 182.

Reps. Tivner, (R.) of Kansas, and Aswell (D.) of Louisiana, withdrew their bills in order to permit a show-down on the Haugen measure.

Offering the motion to send it back to committee, Rep. Madden, (R.) of Illinois, argued that the committee should have another opportunity to perfect a bill. Rep. Tilson of Connecticut, Republican floor leader, supported that move.

Farm bloc representatives fought this move, with bitter arraignment of the Republican leaders. Reps. Dowell (R.) and Rainey, (R.) branded it as "an attempt to kill the bill by knifing it in the back."

The vote on the Haugen bill showed 121 Republicans, 89 Democrats and two Socialists, Laguardia of New York, and Berger of Wisconsin, against it.

Voting for the bill were 98 Republicans, 66 Democrats and three Farmer Laborites.

Provided in the Haugen bill was $175,000,000 to aid farmers in an attempt to stabilize prices through orderly marketing of their surplus crops.

Cotton growers would have received $75,000,000 not to be repaid if the experiment failed. An "equalization fee" not exceeding $2 a bale was to be levied on cotton two years after passage of the bill to repay future loans.

The remaining $100,000,000 was for other agricultural commodities. An "equalization fee" to be levied on commodities as they passed into market was proposed to repay government loans.

An attempt by Aswell to have his bill substituted for the Haugen bill was howled down. Speaker Longworth ruled that neither the Aswell nor Tivner bill could be offered as substitutes in the House since they were not germane.

The Aswell and Tivner bills were thus left on the House calendar. Farm bloc leaders were not disposed tonight to urge passage either. Rep. Dickinson (R.) of Iowa, declared:

"The Republican party has made a great mistake in killing the Haugen bill. The reaction will come at the polls this fall. The farmers' attitude is the Haugen bill or nothing."

"The House has told the farmers that it will not give them a subsidy from the public treasury. The situation has been cleared. Lies have been told about the stand of Secretary of Agriculture Jardine. I shall await developments before moving on farm legislation."

"I hope Congress passes sound legislation for agriculture," said Snell (R.) of New York. Begg (R.) of Ohio, assistant Republican floor leader, expressed similar views.

Noted Bathtub Wine Party Is Aired In Court

Joyce Hawley Is Identified As The Girl Who Took The Bath
In The "Champagne"

(By Universal Service)
EARL L. SHAUB

NEW YORK, May 21.—The hum of the chattering bath-tub wine cocktail at Earl Carroll's famous party on Washington's Broadway was identified in court today as Joyce Hawley.

Carroll is on trial in Federal Court on charges of perjury because he told the Grand Jury there was neither wine nor a mermaid in the tub.

But four witnesses told a different story today. They were all members of the staff of the Daily Mirror who had attended the most celebrated party ever given on Broadway.

Arthur F. Irwin told the story of how Miss Hawley got into the tub which he said contained champagne. "The tub was moved to the center of the stage and a chair was placed in front of it," he testified. "Then a girl came out of the wings to the chair. Some one was carrying a cloak in front of her. Behind the cloak she took off her skirt or chemise and got into the tub."

"Who held the cloak?" he was asked.

"Mr. Carroll,"

"What is the name of the girl who got in the tub?"

"Joyce Hawley."

"How much of Miss Hawley's body could you see after she got in the tub?"

"From a little below her shoulders up."

"Then did Mr. Carroll make any statement?"

"The line forms to the right, gentlemen. Step right up."

"Then what happened?"

"Fifteen or twenty men stepped up and they each took a drink from the contents of the tub."

Irwin testified that 500 quarts of wine must have been used to fill the tub. At present prices that would be $4,000 worth of wine.

The defense used this point to argue that it was not wine in the tub.

Philip A. Payne, managing editor of the Mirror was the principal witness of the day. He testified that he went to the theatre to see the Countess Cathcart about her story, as he was about to leave Carroll stopped him and said to him: "Don't go, I am going to put on a woe of a stunt. I am going to have a girl take a bath in a tub of wine."

"Mr. Payne said he asked Mr. Carroll if he might print the story about it and was told to 'go as far as you like.' He said that a few days after he had printed the story he called up Mr. Carroll and asked him why he was denying it."

"Carroll said he was forced to deny it because it got him into trouble, the witness said. He added that later Carroll asked him to 'lay off' because he was in trouble."

"You attended this party as an invited guest, didn't you?" Payne was asked.

"No, I went as a reporter. I go everywhere, first, last and all the time as a reporter."

He denied that he had received instructions from his publisher to drop publication of stories about the party.

He was handed a batch of telegrams including one from Carroll to his publisher asking him to have the bath tub stories stopped.

Payne looked through the papers and said:

"I don't know whether it was intended that I should see these reports or not—but I have reports too from Mr. Carroll."

"You are a dangerous man to invite to parties, are you not?" he was asked.

"I refuse to parties such as your friends might give," Payne replied. "But my hosts have no reason for fear inviting me."

Robert Coleman testified that he had two drinks at the party and had seen Miss Hawley step nude into the tub.

Paul Lubben gave similar testimony.

Attorneys haggled considerably over the nature of the bath-tub, Carroll is contending it was ginger ale, there were long discussions on the color and the taste with Carroll's attorney trying to confuse the witnesses.

The trial will be continued next Monday.

Denounce Creation Of Big Dry Army

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Indignant Wets and Drys in the senate joined today in their calling a flood of denunciatory remarks upon the head of President Coolidge for issuing an executive order to create an additional army of 10,000 dry agents for county and municipal enforcement of anti-alcohol laws.

The Wets were unanimous in declaring the president's action unconstitutional and an invasion of state rights while many of the leading Drys of the Senate echoed the same sentiment.

The highest speed attained was 71 miles.

JURY UNCOVERS "CANDY KID" TO MORE MURDERS FACE HANGMAN

(By Universal Service)
BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 20.—Two murders of white convicts described as even more atrocious than those perpetrated at Flat Top prison camp were uncovered by the special Grand Jury today in the course of its resumed investigations showing that a white convict Fred Wilkins was beaten to death by a straw boss, described as even more inhuman than Cecil Houston, Flat Top straw boss and the victim known as Hot Shot who was fastened to a coal trap and dragged at high speed into the mine pit. He died instantly and his death likewise was reported as accidental. Unlike conditions at Flat Top Warden Worley was described by convict witnesses as a kindly man interested in the welfare of the convicts but who knew nothing of conditions existing underground where men worked.

Another murder uncovered by the Grand Jurors, according to solicitor Jim Davis, was that of a convict known as Hot Shot who was fastened to a coal trap and dragged at high speed into the mine pit. He died instantly and his death likewise was reported as accidental. Unlike conditions at Flat Top Warden Worley was described by convict witnesses as a kindly man interested in the welfare of the convicts but who knew nothing of conditions existing underground where men worked.

For the first time Whittemore realized the seriousness of his plight when the jury announced its verdict. He involuntarily clutched at his collar as though striving to pull off the rope that will soon be placed around his neck.

The jury deliberated only an hour in convicting him of the murder of Robert H. Holtman, a guard at the Maryland penitentiary when the bandit escaped.

Whittemore, who has been spry and perk during the trial, not only showed fear but anger when the verdict was announced.

As he was being led out of the court room and back to his cell to await the formality of being sentenced he spat in the face of Herbert R. O'Connor, the youth of State's Attorney, who had called Whittemore Baltimore's worst criminal as he pleaded with the jury to hang him.

Whittemore's wife, the "tiger kid," who has attended every session of the trial, fainted when she heard the verdict of doom.

Painters Prevent Holding of Court

The blind goddess of Justice did not preside in the court of Judge Roth yesterday. Unfortunately the ceiling over the steps was being painted and no one was able to climb the stairs. This work will soon be concluded and a few men, cited for overloading trucks will make their appearance in the court.

President Backs Coal Strike Bill

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, May 21.—President Coolidge is determined that Congress should not adjourn until it has passed legislation to protect the public against future suspensions of operations in the coal industry, he told callers today.

Senator Copeland (D.) of New York, explained to the President the provision of a bill introduced by him to carry out recommendations of the United States Coal Commission.

The President was said to be desirous that legislation, embracing recommendations of the commission be enacted into law.

No Crime to Drop Woman Says Judge

CHICAGO, May 21.—It isn't any crime to drop a two-hundred lb. woman from your room, especially when you attempt to let her down easy with a bed sheet.

This was the decision of Judge Frank M. Padden today in the case of Emro Cressin, who was charged with dropping Mrs. Corinne Jenkins.

Mrs. Jenkins was dropped from the third floor of a hotel here when Cressin attempted to let her down to the second floor and someone knocked at his door.

Democrats Name State Chairman

(By Universal Service)
SANTA CRUZ, May 21.—David S. Ewing of Fresno was elected permanent chairman of the State Democratic convention here this afternoon.

Thomas Fox, former postmaster of Sacramento was named vice-chairman, Donald Younger of Santa Cruz, secretary and Miles Nichols of San Bernardino sergeant at arms.

A five minute convention demonstration greeted the inaugural speech of Ewing when he declared "A Democrat is a Democrat with me, I don't care whether he believes in the 16th Amendment or not."

Ewing bitterly assailed the religious issue of the last national convention and declared "It hung over the party. He pleaded for a liberal party policy."

The opinion of leaders here is to the effect that Ewing has ignited the wet and dry issue in the platform fight.

Federals Arrest Alleged Forgers

Numerous plates, inks and papers were found in the apartment. The plates were of $20 notes on the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank.

It is believed that the men planned to flood Chicago with the paper.

Miss Lord won a $50,000 suit for alienation of affections brought against her by Mrs. Ruth Harris, wife of the actor.

Testimony that Harris used perfume behind his ears and began to pay more attention to his clothes, after he met Miss Lord, was taken to indicate that Miss Lord was not the pursuer but the pursued.

SMOKING BY STUDENTS IS ON INCREASE

SACRAMENTO, May 21.—Fully twenty-five per cent of California's high school students are devotees of Lady Nicotine at the present time, or five times as many as used tobacco twenty years ago it was estimated today by Dr. Herbert Stolz, state supervisor of physical education who declared that cigarette smoking by modern high school girls has helped to bring about the surprising increase of the last two decades.

Declaring that smoking by minors "detracts from stamina and interferes with prolonged efforts either physical or mental," Dr. Stolz announced receipts of the result of an eastern survey indicating the use of tobacco by growing boys and girls definitely hampers scholastic achievements. The survey made among students sub-normal, normal and above normal he said showed that the school marks of non-smokers average 15 percent above those of tobacco users.

Such a conference at this time would imperil the success of the preliminary arms parity between the great nations of the world now being held at Geneva. It was stated as President Coolidge's belief.

The Tokyo proposal, sprung as a surprise at the Geneva meeting, for such a "private" conference by the three greatest naval powers to further limit cruisers, submarines and seaplanes, was taken entirely upon the authority of the Japanese government and without consulting the United States, administration leaders declared.

President Coolidge takes the position that the United States has committed itself to a disarmament conference now in session, it was stated. He has strong hope that it will pave the way for agreements among foreign powers to tear down their costly and colossal war machines.

Should this nation consider proposals for another disarmament conference at this time, the move would be interpreted as overshadowing failure of the preceding negotiations, the administration believes.

Other nations, outside the "big three," would doubt the usefulness of proceeding further with the Geneva sessions, the President believes.

"The United States, as a party to the Geneva conference, is doing everything it can to make it a success, but it is not going to limit both land and naval armaments, it was pointed out.

At another time and under different circumstances, President Coolidge believes, a proposal for a naval disarmament conference of the United States might receive whole-hearted consideration.

At present, however, this government has no other thought than to continue its good offices in making the Geneva conference a new step toward international peace and good will.

To Recover Gas From Oil Sands

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, May 21.—Between 12 billion and 32 billions gallons of oil—enough to provide America's 20,000,000 flivvers and two-sixes with "gas" for many years—will be recovered from the nation's "exhausted" oil sands by new recovery methods, Government experts predicted today.

Artificial pressure of compressed air, gas, and water, has already been used successfully in freeing this vast natural wealth from the sands, after the natural flow of oil wells has ceased.

Wide application of these methods and new ones expected to be developed probably will result from the report of the Federal Oil Conservation Board. This will urge steps to make the abandoned fields again productive, it is understood.

Aid for Porto Rico is Asked

(By Universal Service)
NEW YORK, May 21.—A pitiful picture of economic conditions in Porto Rico was painted here today by Dr. Zeno-Gandia, who came to the United States as a member of a commission of sugar producers and agriculturists from the island to present a petition to Dwight F. Davis, secretary of war, imploring relief. The committee especially asks that the United States Government make a survey of economic conditions in Porto Rico.

The people of Porto Rico are actually in want of the necessities of life. Dr. Zeno-Gandia declared, and in the agriculture districts, where unemployment on the sugar, coffee and other plantations has reached an alarming stage. Many without work have been reduced to living skeletons. These people, according to the Dr. are barely existing on such quantities of rice, bananas and cut fish they can secure.

Daugherty Pleads Not Guilty on Charge

(By Universal Service)
NEW YORK, May 21.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government, pleaded not guilty before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard today and was held in $5,000 bail.

Daugherty was indicted with Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, and the late John T. King, Miller, who is ill with blood poisoning at his home in Wilmington, Del., was not in court.

Daugherty's attorney, Max D. Steuer, and Robert S. Johnston representing Miller, made three motions against the indictment. They were a demurrer, a motion to quash the indictment and a plea "at the bar" that if the crime had been committed it is outlawed and not subject to prosecution.

Judge Goddard held that he should pass on these motions, since he was appointed to the bench by President Harding, under whom Daugherty served. He held that the motions should be made before Senior Judge A. N. Hand. No date was fixed for this.

IT IS THE LAW

We do not blame the federal judge at San Antonio for his ruling setting back the prosecution of eight Mexican gentlemen who were plotting against the Calles government. Nor do we blame the attorneys for these men for availing themselves of the machinery of the court to get the prosecutions halted.

It is the law—and we are not proud of it. It seems that in drafting the indictments charging the eight with collaborating on a scheme to dispossess President Calles at Mexico City, someone—possibly a rushed stenographer—left out the word 'knowingly.' This omission was regarded by the court as warrant for sustaining the demurrers. The prosecution, representing the will of the people of the United States, enacted into a law making it punishable to plot rebellion in Mexico, was placed under the compulsion of declaring that the eight were in full possession of their senses when they planned whatever they planned.

To the man up a tree it looks as though the charge that men used their heads to plot ought to be enough. The act of plotting is understood to involve the use of the brains of the plotters. It seems an intrinsic part of plotting to have a certain amount of cerebration, no matter in what oblique direction it occurs.

If the charge covered parking the automobile wrongly, it might reasonably be urged that the prosecution must allege and prove that the unlawful act was committed knowingly. Yet, ignorance of a regulation humanity teaches us, is a mitigation, at least. Any number of us otherwise amiable citizens have broken the laws and have escaped because good natured authority has let us.

The conspiring of two or more persons, however, should include in the eyes of the law that state of willfulness which distinguishes crime from accidental violation.

This is a long disquisition about a comparatively unimportant matter. But it should teach us the lesson of the law's cumbersome machinery. It will teach us if we consider it in relation to the growing menace of crime. For never let it be said that the crook and the organized backer of the crook doesn't know these law loopholes and use them. It is seldom if ever that the technicalities, trivial as that which disturbed the Mexican case day before yesterday, are invoked save to free real criminals.

WORTH MORE THAN $50

Now that the democrats have paid a prize of $50 for a definition as to what a democrat really is, it may be they will have a little more success in trying to pick an issue for a campaign.

The conflict of opinion between "Clem" Shaver, titular leader of the party and Congressman Oldfield, the apparent actual leader, as to the questions with which they are to go to the people, is not surprising, when we appreciate that in the first instance the gentleman was not certain what a democrat was until they paid a prize for a complete answer.

Really, a man who can successfully define a democrat deserves not only $50, but at least ten times that amount. It calls for considerable gray matter to work out a standard definition, in view of the fact that the democrats in the north are wet, and those in the south are dry; that democrats of the north are for the abolition of the tariff, and the democrats in the south with cotton and sugar are staunch upholders; that the democrats in the north believe in Al Smith as a part of their national platform, while those in the south hold to McAdoo and his plans and ways.

Some Pages from American History

HINT OF ANOTHER WAR

Great Britain and France were actively at war when Madison became president of the United States. Though our ships were still forbidden by act of Congress to trade with either country, the new president was eager to re-open commerce with one or both.

The British minister at Washington gave Madison to understand that England would let our vessels sail the seas unmolested if we would promise to send our exports to her and her allies, but refuse them to her enemy, France.

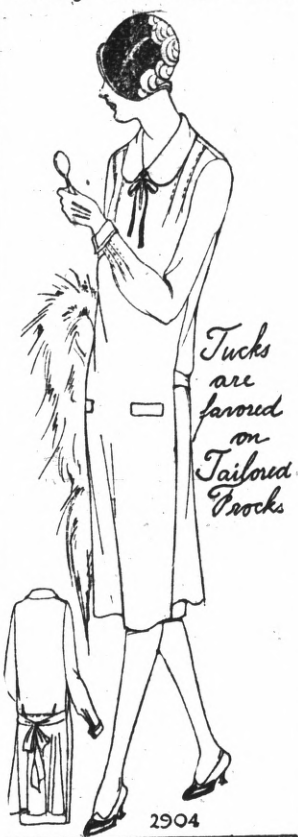

The agreement was made, and when more than a thousand of our vessels sailed for England, farmers, merchants and shipowners felt they would return to fill thousands of empty pockets with welcome dollars. But it had all been a mistake of the British minister. England refused to carry out the agreement. And trade stopped as suddenly as it had begun.

Napoleon, then emperor of France, next held out promise to us. Because we would not aid him in his war against England, he had seized and sold hundreds of our ships, but now he promised to let our commerce alone, provided we would agree not to send any of our produce to Great Britain, but would let him and his friends have what they wanted to buy.

Napoleon's offer appeared nothing but a trick to deceive us and to get us into trouble with England. We agreed to his terms, but he did not keep his word. Hence, the ill-feeling existing between England and America was made more bitter than ever.

Thousands of women in all parts of the United States listen to the Home Service Talks broadcast by Betty Crocker, nationally known food specialist, from the following broadcasting stations: WEEI, Boston, Mass.; WEAF, New York, N. Y.; WCAE, Pittsburgh, Pa.; WGR, Buffalo, N. Y.; WEAR, Cleveland, Ohio; WWJ, Detroit, Mich.; WDAF, Kansas City, Mo.; WHT, Chicago, Ill.; WFL, Philadelphia, Pa.; KSD, St. Louis, Mo.; KFI, Los Angeles, Calif.; and WCCO, the Gold Medal Station, Minneapolis—Saint Paul. All of her recipes and discussions are based upon investigations and work of herself and her assistants in model kitchens.

By special arrangement the Record-Herald is now able to offer its readers this service which heretofore was given out exclusively over the radio.

FOR the past five months I have had the privilege of talking from thirteen of the larger broadcasting stations in the United States. On March 14th I will broadcast my last talk of the season, and this is my final newspaper article. Whether I continue with my writing and my radio talks will depend a good deal on an investigation of mail I have received during the past year in an effort to determine whether or not my talks may have been of real assistance. While the lecturer, actor or concert singer may meet many of his or her audience personally, we must get our applause via Uncle Sam's mail.

I have been very happy over the letters sent me. Some of my readers have even sent me samples of dishes they have prepared from my recipes, as well as suggestions which have been of great assistance to me in my work.

A woman in Connecticut wrote me that she had made all of the recipes which I had given out, from a wheel chair, and I am happy to say that she qualified to receive a diploma in our third cooking school.

A new type of radio party was originated by a friend of mine in Kansas City, Mo. She planned what she called a Betty Crocker Dinner

SIMPLE NEW EMBROIDERIES TO PLEASE FASTIDIOUS TASTES

Designs Appropriate for Dining- or Breakfast-Room
Equally Lovely in All-White or Colorful Combinations

By MONA MULLEN

ONE'S taste may be ever so fastidious, yet it is easily satisfied in the embroideries featured in household linens for the Spring and coming Summer. The style in needlework is also planned months ahead, as are fashions in clothes, because the latter more or less has some influence over the former.

One cannot overlook the fact, for instance, that with fabrics so colorful as they have been for the past season or so, household embroideries have been equally so. And while there are many hostesses who cling almost tenaciously to all-white embroidered linens, especially for formal use, there are many others who take one design and work it up both in white and colors.

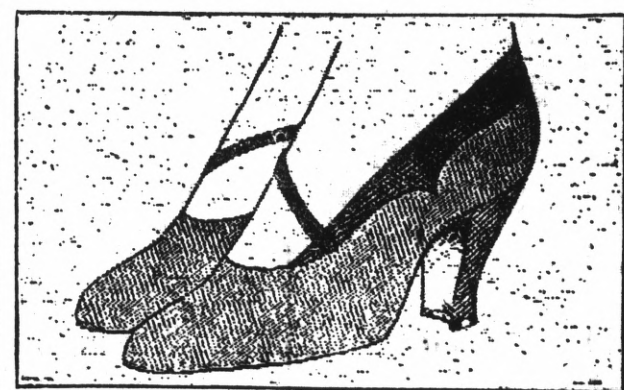

No. 13042
Simple but Lovely
Design for Breakfast-or Dining-Room Linens

The lovely set pictured consists of a luncheon cloth, buffet scarf, and four napkins. The luncheon cloth is 36 inches square, the scarf 12 by 32 inches, and the napkins 11 1/4 inches square. The transfer includes both shape and embroidery motif for each of the pieces of the set. When stamping, a three-inch margin should be allowed for the hem, with a 2-inch margin for the scarf and napkins. If using material that is narrow, however, the hem may be omitted and the edge of the pieces finished with lace or a narrow border of crochet.

Although this is an unusually attractive set, the stitches have purposely been kept simple so that it may be developed rapidly. French knots, lazy-daisy, and running stitches are sufficient for all purposes of development. The large flowers may be done in two shades of pink, using the lazy-daisy stitch. Blue, yellow, and orange are used for the small blossoms, the stitches being French knots. The leaves and stems, in blending shades of green, are worked in lazy-daisy and running stitches.

Sometimes sets of this kind are finished with hems of linen in contrasting color.

Latest Paris Footwear Fashion in Ebony and Tan Kidskin

New York—Paris to London by special aeroplane, London to New York by radio photography in one hour, is the record established in the transmission from Europe of the first radio picture of footwear fashions.

The shoe is the last word of the Parisian boulevard on footwear material and pattern. It is a combination of pale tan and ebony kidskin—ebony being the new shade of black which today, with colored kidskin, is considered the smartest leather innovation in Paris.

It is of asymmetric design, the left and right shoe showing different side effects. The diagonal strap, which starts at the inside of the ankle, crosses the instep and fastens on the opposite side.

The Most for the Money

Don't say you can't afford it. At the prices we are quoting on our fine used cars, the man is extravagant who wears out shoe leather. Ride as you go. Go more and enjoy more. It costs so little in one of these fine automobiles. Your old car taken in as part payment. Very liberal terms.

HOLEPROOF OF ALL FINE HOSIERY OFFERS

5 Unique
Fashion
Features

Plus 31 new Paris colors

NOTE: Holeyproof's 5 famous style points carefully. Together they safeguard you against imperfect hose. In style—in sheer richness of beauty, this hosiery stands supreme. Through special features smartness is increased to an extraordinary degree. And Holeyproof styles are accepted as authoritative.

A few manufacturers of fine hosiery may offer you some of these features, but not one can give them all. By them fashion tells you to judge silk hosiery.

Exquisite clearness. In sheer chiffons, clearness comes only with the use of uniformly even thread. The lack of it in cheaper silk causes unsightly shadow rings. So, at greater cost, Holeyproof selects China silk, judged finest of all oriental grades.

Correct Paris shades. Paris authorities select the newest colors. A unique scientific dyeing process keeps them clear and bright. Our anti-fade treatment protects from fading.

Superlative transparency. Even in the heavier weights there is no cloudiness, no streaks. First, the silk is specially tested, then it undergoes the special scientific Holeyproof treatment.

No loose ends. Loose threads mar appearance. So Holeyproof carefully trims the inside of each stocking by hand.

No imperfections. Style vanishes with imperfections. And here Holeyproof safeguards you by nine separate inspections. It is a fact that few other fine hose are so uniformly perfect.

Every Holeyproof number has this five-fold fashion safety. Every color is new—every style is faultlessly and fashionably correct.

"SEA HORSES" PLEASES MANY AT CALIFORNIA

"Sea Horses" the new Paramount picture, which opened at the California last night, proved to be all that had been claimed for it—a stirring and colorful melodrama with a choice assortment of spectacular features. A first-night audience yesterday was often thrilled, constantly interested and frequently amazed during the projection of the film.

It is to the credit of Allan Dwan, the director, and his capable assistants, Becky Gardiner, adapter, and James Hamilton, scenarist, that the photoplay retains much of the picturesqueness and flavor which made the original story by Francis Brett Young such a popular best seller.

The early scenes are laid on a big ocean freighter, and Dwan has managed to recreate very vividly the coarse, crude life of those who go down to sea in ships. A realistic fist fight and a wild storm at sea add to the general excitement. The rest of the action takes place in an isolated port on the East African coast, where the principal characters come into the open and bitter conflict, and where the plot reaches a crashing climax at the height of a terrific tornado, accompanied by a blinding tropical rainstorm.

Acting honors are pretty evenly divided, for all of the players do excellent work. Florence Vidor, as the lovely English girl, who braves passage on the freighter in order to join her husband in Africa, plays her part with a simplicity, sincerity and natural charm that makes her performance a memorable one. Jack Holt achieves further laurels with his portrayal of the two-fisted sea captain. George Bancroft rises to dramatic heights with his characterization of the burly, brutal mate, who redeems himself in the end; and William Powell gives a very convincing account of him-

LONE WOMAN

Florence Vidor, a lone woman on a freighter, has many thrilling experiences in "Sea Horses," now being screened at the California.

HAROLD LLOYD IS COMING IN LATEST FILM

Sophisticated America and Americans are leaving their marks on the once broad field of comedy.

Do you recall the days when you used to laugh at the Dutch comedians, and the green whiskered Irishmen, of the burlesque and vaudeville stage? Those days are gone, never to return. Burlesque even now is making its last stand in the entertainment field.

Do you remember how you used to roar at the funny antics of the Keystone cops, and how you shrieked when the villain was met with a custard pie in his highly made up optics?

Those days are passed, too. Today is the age of sophistication, indeed, and it goes for motion picture comedies as well as anything else. The comedian who has failed to keep up with the trend of the times, or rather the trend of his audiences, has gradually but certainly slipped into oblivion.

Lloyd Leads
Harold Lloyd, of all the screen's comics, has maintained the leadership in providing the kind of humor the public demands today.

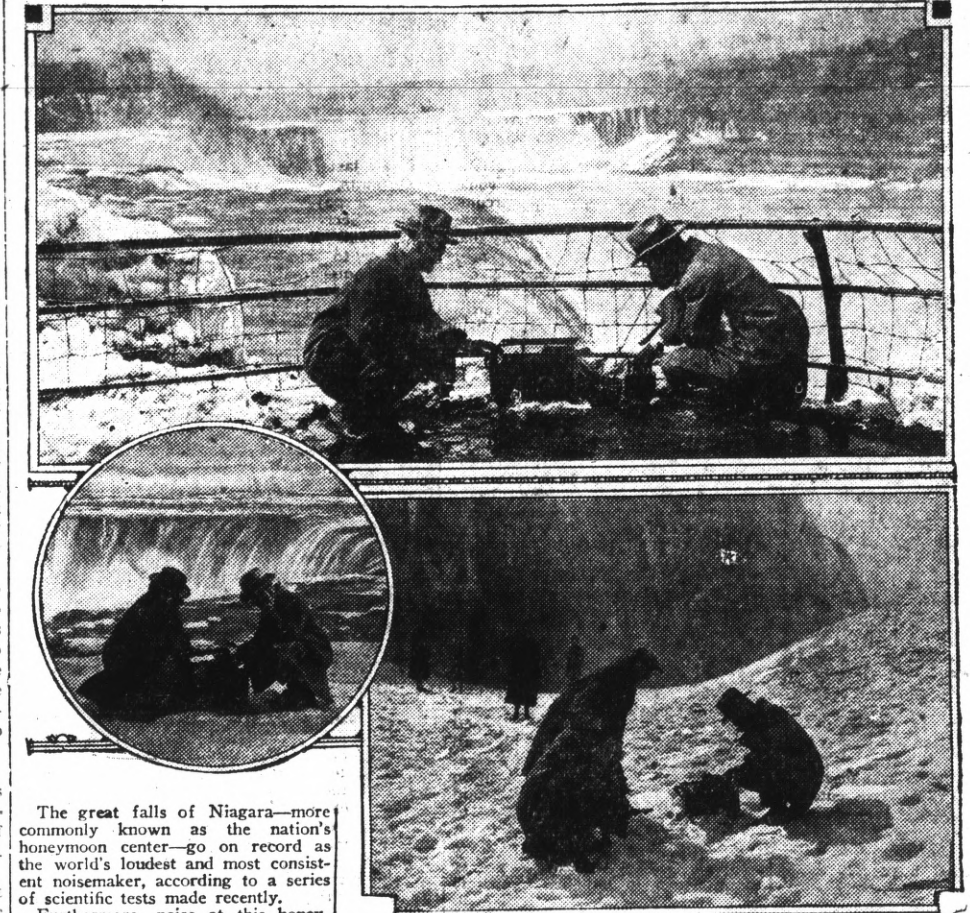

His Latest
Based on a theme that might easily have made a great dramatic story, Lloyd has blended one of his choicest comedy concoctions in "For Heaven's Sake!" which opens on next Monday at the California theatre.

More surprise gags will be found in "For Heaven's Sake!" than in most recent Loyds. In this type of comedy business, Harold is absolutely supreme.

Johanna Ralston heads the supporting cast in the first Lloyd-Paramount release, and gives her usual highly intelligent performance. Noah Young, James Mason and Paul Wiesel are others prominent in the support.

Sam Taylor, co-director of "The Freshman" is given full credit for welding the megaphone.

Niagara's Roars Are Placed on Record; Louder Than Man-Made Noises

Top: Noise measurement being made at Prospect Point. Bottom: Tabulating noisiest spot at foot of American Falls. Circle: Investigators comparing noises on Canadian side at head of Horseshoe Falls.

The great falls of Niagara—more commonly known as the nation's honeymoon center—go on record as the world's loudest and most consistent noisemaker, according to a series of scientific tests made recently.

Furthermore, noise at this honeymoon center never dies. It persists through the twenty-four hours, while man-made noise at our metropolitan centers maintains something of a union scale—that is, from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M.

The noisiest parts of the falls were found to be at the foot of the American Falls, directly below Prospect Point, and at the ice mountain in front of the waterfall of the Cave of the Winds. The quietest spot—was incidentally not so very quiet—was found to be at Terrapin Point on Goat Island.

The survey, made by investigators from the Scientific Equipment Division of the Graybar Electric Company, is similar to a noise test made recently in New York City. The instrument used is known as a Western Electric audiometer, which measures noise in sound units and is frequently employed in testing the hearing of partially deaf people.

The two record-breaking spots at Niagara registered 70 units of noise as compared with 55 units at Manhattan's noisiest intersection, 34th Street and Sixth Avenue. The next noisiest spot was located at the tip of Goat Island, at the head of the Cave of the Winds falls. Noise measurement here was 60 units.

Other noise tests made at the point of Luna Island, at the American Rapids and at the head of the Canadian Horseshoe Falls, showed these sections somewhat quieter than those already cited. The audiometer at each of these points recorded 55 units.

At three other famous vantage points of the falls—namely, at the Canadian Rapids above the Horseshoe Falls, at the Whirlpool Rapids below the falls, and at Prospect Point itself—the noise measurement recorded at each was 50 units.

The prize for quietness at the falls—honeymooners, please note—must be handed to Terrapin Point on Goat Island. The instrument here refused to record more than 45 units.

The investigators concluded that noises at Niagara Falls are appreciably greater in volume and intensity than man-made noises in our great industrial and business centers.

Power Systems Make Good Service Cheap

California's great and ever ready power supply at cheap rates is the result of system building.

But a few years ago Richmond was dependent upon local electric systems. No large hydro electric supply—no emergency service—no farm service—many shut down—higher rates!

Richmond has now been made a part of the Western States Electric System, tied in with high power transmission lines, fed by large, reliable Hydro Electric sources.

Homes, factories, farms and business have benefited by the improved service.

Business, brains and initiative have built power systems giving California the cheapest power and greatest use per person in the nation.

Damage Suit is Marked by Length Of Testimony

MARTINEZ, May 21.—Walter C. Smith, electrical engineer, testifying for the plaintiffs in the half million dollar suit of the Balfour Guthrie company against the Great Western Power company was asked the last of thousands of question today by Warren Olney in the cross examination in the court of Superior Judge A. B. MacKenzie's court. The question was carefully prepared by the defense attorney and it was read into record. The time of the reading was 34 minutes and it was answered by one word: "Yes."

The question was the longest one on record in the Contra Costa courts.

When Smith left the stand the plaintiff quickly concluded its case. The presentation of the case by the plaintiff ended today when the defense called witnesses to impeach the testimony of the watchman who first discovered the fire in the Port Costa grain warehouse.

The court was then adjourned until Tuesday afternoon.

"Seven Keys to Baldpate" On The Screen Here

After a search for story material that extended over a period of several months, Douglas MacLean selected "Seven Keys to Baldpate" as his first starring comedy for Paramount.

The story, which holds the screen at the Richmond theatre today, is one that is known to everyone and needs no retelling. For the past decade, "Seven Keys to Baldpate" has been a stage favorite of audiences the world over and has in addition to its New York triumph a record for performances by stock companies in every city in the United States aside from being presented by road companies in every town large enough to support a theatre.

In bringing the Cohan story to the screen, MacLean has struck to the original faithfully adding to it only what additional material screen comedy technique demanded. Love-interest, substituted for the "Wager" angle, and a surprise climax are features of the screen play of Frank Griffin and Wade Boteler.

Fred Newmyer, who made all the recent Harold Lloyd comedies, directed "Seven Keys." Edith Roberts, leading woman, heads the cast, playing in support of the star. Other big names include Betty Francis, Mayme Kelso, Anders Randolph, Crawford Kent, Ned Sparks, William Orlamonde and Edwin Sturgis.

It is generally the case with screen adaptations of famous stage plays to compare the pictures with the legitimate productions. Not to be an exception to the rule, we add that "Seven Keys to Baldpate" is bigger and better than the original Cohan version of the piece.

And that's something! Other features include "Cheap Skates" a Leige Conley comedy; and a Felix the cat cartoon.

MAX-LEE'S TO OPEN TODAY

One of another chain of stores opens this morning at 695 Macdonald Avenue, next door to La Moines Sixth street store. The new establishment is to handle men's clothing, pants, hats and caps.

Max-Lee's for a long time established throughout the bay district features men's suits and similar lines.

The opening of this chain store denotes the appraising eyes of outside interest in the Richmond field. The fact that chain store after chain store is coming to Richmond proves the prevalent contention that Richmond is a fertile field and is growing.

ENGLISH SAY FRANCE GETS U. S. MONEY

(By Universal Service)
LONDON, May 21.—"Americans spent $350,000,000 in Europe in 1925, of this $250,000,000 went to France and $100,000,000 to other countries."

England has a grudge against this state of affairs, which is being expressed by Sir Francis Towle, leading hotel man, in a series of meetings designed to devise measures to tempt some of these millions away from France and into England during the coming summer and autumn.

"Shipping companies and travel agents tell us we are going to get more Americans over than ever before next season," says Sir Francis. "But at the same time there is a growing tendency for visitors from the United States to proceed direct to the Continent. Something must be done to induce Americans to include the United Kingdom in the early part of their itinerary, or at all events not to omit England from their 'European program'."

Admitted deterrents to a visit to England are bad landing facilities at Plymouth, Continental rates of exchange which yield a lot of cheap paper for dollars, and bad hotel accommodations in the English provinces. To lure the dollar to London, the Shakespeare country, the Thames Valley and Scotland, attempts are to be made to overcome these obstacles.

Wilson Cross, who presides over the American club here, warned the organizers that Americans find that hotel life costs more in London than on the Continent and that it is not so good.

Room and bath during the season at one of the foremost hotels costs at least $8 a night. Second class hotels in London are now charging $5 a night and upwards. Third rate hotels throw in a breakfast with a $3 room. But from mid-April to mid-July, most London hotels are full, and it is difficult to see how accommodation could be provided for any heavy increase in the number of Americans visiting London. The complaint of most hotel men here

Transfer Vital Organs of Two

By JOHN T. BURKE
Universal Service Staff
Correspondent
(By Universal Service)

ROME, May 21.—American delegates to the international medical post-graduate assembly, now meeting at Eporence, are deeply interested in the outcome of an operation at the Alberti hospital yesterday by Prof. Pietro Bastianello.

Using the Voronoff method Dr. Bastianello transferred one vital organ from Alfredo Romoli, 44, father of seven children, and grafted it into the body of Luigi Lelli, 39. Surgically the operation is hailed as a success but a week must elapse before Dr. Bastianello will be able to determine whether the vitality of the organ has been effectively transplanted.

Ecclesiastical authorities are reported to be shocked and will probably oppose the repetition of the operation.

Mrs. Maude Sanborne of Armona who is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Robert Kinney, 644 Seventeenth street will leave for her home in a few days.

Just season was that trippers with limited spending money were taking the place of the American millionaire class.

Night life facilities in London will be more extensive this year than last. Three years ago, Luigi at the Embassy Club took the cream of the supper and dancing business, with the Savoy hotel also attracting after-dinner crowds with its Havana bands and Ciro's being well patronized. Now the Kit-Cat club is a fashionable rendezvous. Rizzoli from Ciro's has opened the new Ambassadors' club, the New France's Cabaret gives a full vaudeville program and dancing with its dinner and supper, and there is a select new night dance restaurant near Piccadilly Circus, called the Cafe de Paris. All of these places are expected to do a very profitable American trade during the next four months.

Ireland this year is also a bidder for American dollars. Travel and hotel facilities are greatly improved, and Kiltarny is looking for a return of the prosperity that has been denied it for twelve years.

GRATIFYING PROGRESS BEING MADE IN SETTLING WAR DEBTS

By GEORGE E. ROBERTS

From The Monthly Bank Letter For May Issued by The National City Bank of New York.

Events of paramount interest in furthering the restoration of sound economic conditions throughout the world has been the progress made during the past month in settling the debts owed by various European Governments to the United States. On April 30 an agreement between the American Debt Commission and Ambassador Berenger for the funding of the French debt was announced, and during the month Congress ratified the agreements concluded between representatives of the United States and Italy, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Rumania, and Latvia for the funding of the debts of those Governments to this country. These are gratifying results, and for those nations with whom the settlements have been ratified, clear away a subject of controversy and enable them to plan definitely for the management of their finances.

In the case of the French debt, the compact to be finally binding must be ratified both by the United States Congress and the French Parliament. According to press reports, $684,674,104 is to be paid over a period of 62 years, or approximately $627,000,000 more than was called for by the terms of the Cailleux offer made last October. Payments are to be made in installments of $30,000,000 for the first and second years, $32,500,000 for the third and fourth years, and $35,000,000 for the fifth year, thereafter rising to a maximum of $125,000,000 in the seventeenth year, at which level they continue until the final year when there is a payment of $117,674,104.

During the first five years no interest is charged, and after that the rate averages about 1.58 per cent. Reckoning money at worth 4 1/2 per cent, the present day value of the aggregate payments to be made over 62 years is slightly over 50 per cent of the principal of the debt funded, compared with 26 per cent in the Italian agreement and 78 per cent in the British agreement.

Certain provisions are also to be included allowing France an optional period of grace on payments falling due within the first five years. Under all these settlements large concessions have been made from the face of the debts, the principle being recognized that agreements should be on the basis of the debtor's capacity to pay, taking account of practical considerations, as business men would deal with a debtor under like circumstances. All of the adjustments are with a view of affording industry and trade opportunity to function as normally as possible, for upon this depends the successful operation of all plans and the hope of general prosperity for debtor and creditor alike.

Need for Debt Settlement

On the general question of the war debts, there has been a vast amount of controversy. It is perfectly hopeless, however, to think that in regard to relative interests in the war or relative obligations in sharing the costs the people of the associated countries ever will think the same. The discussion upon that phase of the subject might go on with nothing but mutual irritation until the last survivor of this generation had passed away, and be renewed by the descendants; furthermore, it is not the practical phase.

The matter of real importance now is not how the war originated, who was most vitally threatened or who ought to pay the costs; all the world is now interested in regaining prosperity. The question of whether the debts are to be paid or cancelled is not so important to either debtors or creditors as that the masses of the people shall have employment, with pay sufficient to enable them to buy and consume each other's products, and that to this end monetary system and exchange shall be stabilized and trade given opportunity to move freely. This requires that governmental finances shall be put in order, that national credit shall be re-established, that the liabilities of nations shall be definitely determined and covered by revenues, that taxation shall be neither so heavy upon business as to paralyze development nor so heavy upon the masses as to unduly restrict consumption and trade.

The world needs a restoration of order in its affairs. The people of the United States are more interested in current trade than in getting the last possible dollar in debt settlements, which of necessity arrange for payments a half century hence. Secretary Mellon has expressed this opinion with particular reference to exports of farm products. Unquestionably prosperity in Europe would increase the demand for our meat products, which afford the most practical means of disposing of our surplus corn, and the south is facing the need of a larger outlet for cotton. In the five fiscal years ended June 30, 1914, our yearly average export of cotton was 8,532,000 bales, and for the five years ended June 30, 1925, 6,638,000 bales, while under normal conditions there should have been a considerable increase, for not only does an increased population require a corresponding increase in supply, but with a normal rise in the standard of living there is an increased per capita demand. The cotton market has been declining in recent months because of accumulating stocks and excessive exports. The latter signify unsatisfactory trade conditions over the world.

The Example of Reparations

The deadlock over reparations, which lasted from 1919 to 1924, teaches a most pertinent lesson upon the debt settlements. It was not until the allied governments quit figuring on the losses which had to be reimbursed, quit arguing for the justice of their claims, and accepted the appointment of an independent commission to find out how much it was practical for Germany to pay, that any real progress toward the solution of the reparations problem was made.

The Dawes Commission laid down certain principles. It said that not only was it impossible for the reparations to be paid in gold, but that the allies, with such other nations as would cooperate, must lend Germany sufficient gold to serve as the foundation of a stable monetary system, in order that industry might have a firm basis of operations, and be able to compete in the markets of the world. They said that reparations could be paid only in the products of the country and by a surplus of exports over imports after allowing for home consumption on a scale sufficient to maintain the health and energies of the German population; also that there must be some accumulation of new capital, to enable Germany to be maintained on a competitive basis. In short, the conditions required by the commission, instead of being what might be expected for a conquered country at the hands of enemies, read very much like a prescription for prosperity. The explanation was that if it was planned to collect reparations over a long period the productive capacity of the country must be maintained, not weakened.

Finally, they made it clear to the creditors that Germany would discharge her obligations by collecting the required sums within Germany, and that the responsibility of converting them into foreign currencies belonged to the creditors. They must take German goods or bills of exchange drawn against sales of German goods abroad. If German goods did not create foreign balance reparations payments would have to cease.

A Summary of Trade and Debt Conditions

If we are going to collect the debts owing to the Government, we must either reduce our exports, increase our imports or increase our private investments abroad.

If we are going to stop making private investments abroad, we must either reduce our exports or increase our imports, and also give up the idea of increasing our collections on the debts to the Government.

And, finally, if we want to increase our commodity exports we must expect to increase our commodity imports, unless we are satisfied to lend capital indefinitely to settle the balance.

Plan to Move Old Market in London To the Outskirts

By ROBERT J. PREW
(By Universal Service)

LONDON, May 21.—London has undergone many architectural changes since the war, and now the most drastic of all is promised in the abolition of Covent Garden, the great produce market from which most of London's food supplies are drawn.

The plan contemplated it to remove the market to the site of the Foundling Hospital in Bloomsbury, which covers nine acres. Here is to be built a market twice the size of the present one, with a vast underground goods station linked with all the great railroad trunk lines.

Once Covent Garden market is dismantled, the building of a new Strand to run parallel with the present Strand will be undertaken.

Both the Covent Garden market and the Foundling Hospital site are owned by the "Beechman Estates." Sir Arthur du Cros, one of the directors, explains that the aim is to create the world's best market on the proposed new location. The approval of the City Corporation is necessary, but in spite of threatened opposition, it is likely to be granted. The Covent Garden market has long produced chaotic traffic conditions in the Strand and other nearby main arteries, and the authorities are expected to welcome the removal of the market further north from the center of London.

London, particularly in the busy West End, is still undergoing drastic structural changes. Regent Street, famous as a shopping thoroughfare, is now an unbroken chain of palatial stores. Piccadilly Circus today would be unrecognizable by anyone who last saw it three years ago; it is much bigger than before, if not so symmetrical, the famous old "Swan and Edgar corner," one of the best known places of rendezvous in the world, being now well set back towards Piccadilly.

Along Piccadilly itself several new modern buildings are slowly being erected. The site of Devonshire House, historic home of the Cavendishes, is now occupied by London's most palatial and expensive apartment buildings, beneath which are a number of luxury shops of display windows. The Berkeley Hotel, which used to harmonize effectively with Devonshire House, is now dwarfed by its massive new neighbor.

The widening of the Strand has been suspended pending the falling in of further leases, but one-half of the famous thoroughfare has been well set back on the South side.

Together with the modernising of Central London has come the introduction of the bytatory system of traffic. In Parliament Square, in front of Buckingham Palace, at Trafalgar Square and Piccadilly, vehicles must now move round these open spaces, wheeling to the left; none of them may be crossed direct. Numerous white lines guide the traffic under this system is proving effective.

French Concerned Over Freedom of Mediterranean

By FRANK E. MASON
(By Universal Service)

PARIS, May 21.—The freedom of the seas in general, but the freedom of the Mediterranean in particular, is becoming an object of anxious concern to the French government. English control of the Suez and Gibraltar has already turned the Mediterranean into a potential British lake.

Now Mussolini is talking vaguely of Italy's future on the sea, and backed up his words by crossing the Mediterranean. His talk may be vague, but the Italian dictator's program has proven to be most precise. While shipyards all over the world are nearly silent, the Italian dry docks are crowded with swarming workmen, who are translating the phrase of Italy's future on the sea into facts.

France, who's national life has come to depend upon keeping open the ship lanes between Marseilles, Toulon and Africa, is frankly worried. Pessimists see the dark clouds of a naval war gathering over the Mediterranean, and France not only has no inclination to fight, but she is almost hopelessly unprepared.

"There is nothing more international than the sea. It belongs to all alike." This is the opinion of former premier George Leygues, now minister of the Navy, expressed in an interview. "Nobody has the right to say: 'This sea is mine.' The sea has no boundary lines."

French naval experts are in a quandary. They apparently don't know whether France's interests dictate a close co-operation with England in the Mediterranean against Italy, or the opposite.

Fighting Planes Terror of All Future Battles

(By Universal Service)

LONDON, May 21.—"The fighting aeroplane of the future will resemble the submarine; it will penetrate to heights hitherto undreamed of, and to enable the pilot to resist the low temperature and rarified atmosphere he will wear a special suit and be entirely enclosed within the plane, as are a crew of the submarine below the water."

Such is the statement of Lt. Colonel F. T. Ethernott, the officer commanding the London Anti Aircraft Brigade.

"A hostile air fleet," continues Colonel Ethernott, "from wherever it started over the continent, could be over England within one to four hours and could bomb London even though the attacks were unable to spot a single house within the city."

"Developments in detection and the location of giving positions from the air are reaching such a stage that it is immaterial whether the target is in view or concealed."

Sound Locaters

"Indeed the menacing sound of the giant aeroplanes as they sweep over-head would be heard only by the sound locaters, instruments so delicately turned that they are capable of detecting approach of enemy aircraft at great distances. Even with such appliances at our command, the elements of surprise is not eliminated."

"There are in the making now vast bombing planes, having engines of 800 to 1,200 horsepower, able to travel at not less than 300 miles an hour and moving in the skies at an altitude of 35,000 to 45,000 feet."

"They will climb at the rate of 1,500 feet a minute, and in the case of the single seater 'plane,' when its manoeuvres have placed it in a favorable position above the enemy, the terminal velocity in the downward sweep will exceed 800 miles per hour, a speed actually in advance of sound itself."

The immense height at which aeroplanes fly raised another point—the question of lighting the next war attacks will be mainly by night and we shall need searchlights spreading wide.

angle beams across the skies and flooding them with light.
Gasoline Supply

"The gasoline supply is the governing factor in the air. It will be necessary to remain aloft for extended periods; the consumption of motor spirit being half a gallon a minute, almost as fast as it can be poured into the tank." Dealing with the future warfare actually Colonel Ethernott paints a very depressing picture. He says that it is now feasible for an enemy power to send over Great Britain a fleet of several hundred aeroplanes, each with a carrying capacity of fifty hundred pound bombs.

Aerial research has also added another unpleasant feature and that it is now possible from the air to impregnate areas with poisonous gases any vapors to the extent that it will be unapproachable.

The full extent of this aerial spraying at the moment cannot be gained, but from experiments so far as is known in an invisible current of so highly poisonous a nature that it sets up intense irritation, and will place both human beings and animals completely out of action unless provided with a special protective clothing capable of withstanding its penetrative power.

Chemical Warfare

Colonel Ethernott also declares that chemical warfare has now reached such a stage that an area can be impregnated with a certain noxious gas that will blind troops within a few seconds of contact with it. The most sinister feature about this new development is that troops may enter the area and only when they have done so will the blinding effects manifest themselves. This would mean total incapacity both moral and physical.

The Colonel declares that Britain's own position as to air power development is very satisfactory. "Our machines," he says, "are admittedly superior, but those controlling our air policy are fully cognizant of the meaning of air supremacy, the obvious corollary to which is a well-equipped fleet."

HORSES WISER THAN MEN The Natural Way to Drink Cold Water

under the five principal elements of Nature, the mineral, vegetable, water, fire, and earth elements. Should all of these elements function in perfect union, there would be no overheated, thirsty areas either in the human system or in the earth. When one of the organs of the human body becomes inflamed, it requires a corrective to quench the consequent thirst; such as cold water or a remedy of some kind. When a person is thirsty, it is unnecessary for him to pour cold water into the stomach just for the sake of drinking "Eight cups a day."

A horse, guided by his natural instincts, is wiser in this respect than human beings are. If he is not thirsty, you may lead him to water, but you cannot make him drink. Why, then, should human beings flood their systems with water when they are not in need of it? It must be remembered that all our daily food is raised and cooked with water. Soup, tea, coffee, milk, cocoa and other drinks consist chiefly of water.

If a person has a temporary cold and fever, has eaten salty food, has worked hard and perspired freely, or who has talked too much, this overheating the liver, it is necessary for him to take a cup of water to quench his immediate thirst. However, one who is continually dry and thirsty must seek permanent relief by taking treatment. Those who try to get well by merely drinking cold water, which in itself has no curative power, will, in time, injure one or more of their internal organs.

Weak, Run-Down and in Pain

Oakland, April 23, 1926.
For more than a year I was in a very weak and run-down condition. Finally, in the latter part of December, 1925, some boils broke out in my stomach which could not be healed. Of course they were caused by blood disorders.
In addition to this suffering, I had pains in my head and shoulder blades, together with coughs and bronchitis. I tried vainly to get relief from various remedies, but made no improvement until I came to the Fong Wan Herb Company.
I took their herbs for only three weeks. This was three months ago, and I rejoice to say that I am still in fine condition, enjoying good health and free from pain. I shall be glad to give any earnest inquirer further information about how wonderfully the Fong Wan Herbs helped me.

Mother and Daughter Relieved Tumor Overcome

Oakland, April 23, 1926.
For about a year, I had a tumor on my right side that was so painful I could hardly walk. I consulted many physicians but none of them thought the tumor could be cured without an operation. Very fortunately for me, a friend recommended the FONG WAN HERB COMPANY. After I had drunk the herbs for seven weeks, the tumor was gone and I was entirely well. It is now two months since I discontinued the herb treatment, yet I am still free from pain and feeling fine.
My daughter Cecile was troubled with swelling of her face and hands. She took the Fong Wan Herbs for her blood and after seven days of the treatment she was completely relieved.

HARMS KNOCKS OUT FENTON IN FOURTH ROUND

ACTION GALORE IN FIGHTS AT LOCAL ARENA

Young Pancho Villa and Jack Scott Fight Unpopular Draw in Semi-Windup

Billy Harms knocked out Curly Fenton in the main event of the Richmond Athletic club's semi-monthly boxing show last night. The knockout occurred in the fourth round of the scheduled six round go, and it resulted from a terrific right cross to the point of Fenton's nose to sturdy chin. The fight was fairly even up to the knockout.

Young Pancho Villa of Oakland and Jack Scott of Stockton, fast 110 pounders put up a terrific six round fight in the semi-windup. Referee Frank Neil called this one a draw, but the crowd thought the lighter boy had the edge. Villa weighed only 103 pounds against Scott's 111 pounds, and gave his heavier opponent a merry time. Little Pancho looked real good last night, side stepping Scott's rushes and meeting him with solid left crosses. Both the boys are "south-paws."

Ed Kruger, San Francisco heavyweight, met a Tarter in Tiger Robinson, who plastered Kruger with every known punch in the book and finally knocked him out in the fourth, and last stanza. Robinson asked Matchmaker Harry Eagles for a fight ten days ago and said he had a "couple" of fights and described himself as a fair boy. He is plenty fair, we'll tell the world. He showed more class than any boxer on the card, and what he would do to boxers like Charley Birch or Frankie Novell would be a shame.

Jimmy West again showed all of his old time ability when he easily disposed of Young Cumpton by a technical knockout in the third round. West was out-fighting the hard hitting Cumpton in a hot and dusty fight, but in the third round he landed some hard left hooks that crumpled the Los Angeles boy, and a towel fluted in the ring from Cumpton's corner compelling Referee Neil to stop the bout. This was one of the best bouts of the evening.

Les Gill of San Francisco, and Young Vasquez of Richmond fought a great draw in the curtain raiser. The boys fought hammer and tongs never gave an inch battle with the tide of battle going from one then to the other.

A fair house witnessed the bouts, but the attendance did not justify last night's splendid card, which was the fastest most bitterly contested set of fights staged here yet. Frankie Neil, ex-bantamweight champion of the world refereed all bouts.

Challenge Tennis Match Will be Played Here Today

A special feature of the week end matches of the Richmond Tennis club for the city championship, preparatory to the Pacific Coast championships, will be a challenge match today at 2 p. m. on the center court at the City Hall, Nevins avenue and the Civic Center.

Nebd Chasseur, of the University of California, and L. S. Fish, of Stanford University, both first group members of the Richmond Tennis club, will be contestants. A. S. Rennell, tournament director of the club, will umpire.

Chasseur has been coming fast and strong this spring, and has well earned the right to challenge Fish, Standard Oil company champion, who is tied with A. K. Herman, former Standard title holder for Richmond city and club honors.

Fish has just recovered from a sprained ankle, which injury occurred on the eve of a match with Herman, and has gamely accepted the challenge of the youngster. Chasseur at his first opportunity, practice in men and women's doubles and mixed doubles is bringing many members to the courts morning and evening, and plans and preparations for the city finals next week, during the Decoration Day holiday, are progressing rapidly, with promise of an exceptionally interesting program, which will be published in the RECORD-HERALD early in the week.

Ironworkers Tie With Santa Fe

The Ironworkers tied the Santa Fe ball team by a score of 5 to 5 last night at the Twenty-third street ball diamond in a fast and furious game. Matthews and Moss were the batteries for Ironworkers while Bernadeau and Wright were the heavy workers for the Santa Fe.

Two Diving Boards At Richmond Pool

Two complete diving boards which meet the specifications of the inter-collegiate and A. A. U. are now installed at the municipal natatorium. Manufacturers of the original diving board in accordance with their guarantee replaced a board cracked by Al White, national diving champion some time ago. The board was heard to crack when White made an exceptionally heavy jump. The additional board was installed to accommodate the long line of waiting swimmers on heavy attendance days. The two boards eliminate the waiting and provide the divers with sufficient facilities.

A. A. A. Appoints Californian to Contest Board

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, May 21.—Val Haresnape of Los Angeles, nationally known racing expert, has been appointed manager of the contest board of the American Automobile Association, which regulates and supervises all track and speedway sanctioned automobile racing events in the United States. Ernest N. Smith, general manager of the A. A. A. announced today. Haresnape has already assumed his new duties here.

For two years Haresnape was a member of the board from the Pacific Coast and played a prominent part in championship racing events west of the Rocky mountains. In addition, he has since 1920 been one of the representatives of the contest board in California, which from a racing standpoint is one of the important sections of the country, and the winter home of the champion drivers.

BAKE RUTH
Babe Ruth is still going up the ladder to success. Yesterday he slammed another home run, bringing his grand total for the year up to fifteen. Ruth got his homer in the game with St. Louis yesterday with another man on base. Ruth will soon be at the top of the ladder and again will listen to the cry of the fans. He has yet to be forgiven by some fans for the honors he pulled in private life.

OAKS

Ivan Howard: Where are my wandering Oaks today? Fans: May down, "way down," "way down yonder in the cellar." Howard: I wonder how the got there? Fans: "Way down," "way down," "way down yonder in the cellar." Why are they down there? Fans: (Short and snappy) Seattle Indians!

ANGELS

The Angels are having a wonderful time playing tag with the Seals and it is reported that they even indulge in ring around the roses, using the bases as a route, and London Bridge is falling down. What a wonderful time, and wonderful place to play. Evidently the Seals expect to lose the pennant this year or are they only fooling. What they need is hitters, pitchers, fielders, basemen, and catchers and then they should have a wonderful team.

CARDS

On the eve of the Stanford track and field team leaving for the east to enter the Eastern track meets at Cambridge, it has been announced that Captain Bill Storie, star quarter miler who has beaten the Card ace, Ted Miller several times will be unable to enter the meet, illness in the family is the reason given.

Gossard front lace corsets, girdles and corsetlets are featured at popular prices at the corset and hosiery shop.

Double Main Event At El Cerrito Club

A double main event will be staged at the El Cerrito Athletic club on Friday with Bobby Burns battling Young Freeman and Frankie Gray trying to K. O. Eddie Hoppe.

The remainder of the card is as follows:

GOLF CONTEST CAUSING MUCH SPECULATION

Golf fans at the Carquinez Golf club are deep in thought, wondering how the match between C. A. Altman and George Bill for the championship of the Carquinez golf club will end.

The first eighteen holes will start at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning and the second nine will start at 1:30 o'clock.

It is hard to say who will win the game for 16th Altman and Bill are good players. But fans who have played with Bill and caddies who chase around the course with him are laying their money on him. There is no reason why he should not win, they declare. His score may be one of two strokes higher than his opponent but Bill is steady and is without nerves, and this counts.

QUIET TITLE SUIT FILED

Seeking a decree to quiet title to property and asking judgment for $600, which he claims is the amount of rental on the property belonging to the estate of Mrs. Louise Hickman, Mitchell M. Cure, administrator of the estate, has filed a suit against Mrs. Emma Wells Carliquist and Attorney C. D. Horner of Richmond.

Cure alleges that Mrs. Carliquist took advantage of the "feeble physical and mental condition" of Mrs. Hickman in 1922 and had her execute a power of attorney and that Mrs. Carliquist, then Emma Wells, conveyed the property, consisting of a lot in Richmond, to Lovell Carliquist.

As Carliquist subsequently deeded the property to Attorney Horner, the latter is also made one of the defendants in the suit. The suit was filed in Martinez by C. W. White.

Same Man is Nominated by Two Parties

(By Universal Service)
WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 21.—John J. Casey, a Democrat and former member of congress from Luzerne county has been nominated by both the Republican and Democratic parties for congress as a result of the primary election of Tuesday in which he defeated the present republican congressman, Edmund N. Carpenter, and Evan J. Williams of Manticook, both staunch republicans.

Mr. Casey ran unopposed in the Democratic primaries, and in the Republican primaries he won out by a plurality of 700 votes. Congressman Carpenter finishing second and Mr. Williams third.

The victory of Mr. Casey in the republican primaries is ascribed to the alleged refusal of the Coolidge administration to take steps to end the recent anthracite coal strike. Mr. Casey has long been the champion of America and labor bodies. He conducted a quiet campaign among the workers of Luzerne county and his nomination on the republican ticket, as well as on the democratic ticket caused some surprise.

The nominee has already served half a dozen years in congress and has been chairman of several important national committees.

DIRECT ACADEMY OF THE AIR

Thousands of farm folk went to school by radio, enrolled as regular students in the Radio School of Agriculture, via the microphones of WLS, thirty-two states, from Maine to Wyoming, from Quebec and Manitoba to Texas are represented in this vast student body.

The first semester of the radio school closed for summer vacation the last of April, with a final examination of ten practical questions as problems of farm and marketing. The Foundation offered 100 prizes for the 100 best answers to all ten questions, and more than 400 farmers took the "exam" and received credit in the course.

With a faculty comparable to that of any state university, the Radio School of Agriculture goes on the air every weekday but Saturday at six p. m., for live, interesting discussions on every aspect of farming. Dean of the school is E. B. Heaton, farm advisor of the Foundation, who is himself a practical farmer and teacher of farming. Lectures on rural life are directed by Samuel R. Guard, director of the Foundation. Recitations are by letter. The radio faculty answers queries for information or helps with the problems which face the farmer. Those of universal interest are answered over the air, while others are answered by mail. At the close of the summer vacation the Radio School will open for its second semester, continuing the course and farm and marketing problems.

STANKO JUKICH ISEXECUTED

(By Universal Service)
STATES PRISON, CARSON CITY, Nev., May 21.—Stanko Jukich, convicted slayer of a woman, a youthful giant across the prison yard and took death smilingly at 11 o'clock this morning. He paid the supreme penalty to society for the murder of his fifteen year old sweetheart, Jennie Madak, more than a year ago.

There was a murmur of admiration rippling through the crowd as two guards brought the man across the gray sandstone floor to the death house. Witnesses placed at the three observation windows by Warden W. J. Macwell, watched intently as Jukich was loosely strapped in a big pile chair and casually took in his surroundings. He smiled and noticed the sole woman at the window said: "Good bye, girlie!" and nodded his head to her. At a signal from the warden, an unknown man in the adjoining room gave a plunger several strokes and opened a valve which sent the lethal fluid into the gas chamber. Jukich turned his head slightly upon hearing the hiss of gas, took several deep breaths and went to sleep for ever.

It was definitely announced that there would be no attempt to resuscitate Jukich. His body was given to his cousin, George Jukich and Antonio Cornak, a friend for burial in Carson city, after he had been pronounced officially dead one hour and 38 minutes after the execution when the gas cell was opened.

Col. Williams Sentence is Sustained

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, May 21.—Secretary of the Navy Wilbur today sustained the conviction of Col. Alexander S. Williams, Marine corps officer, found guilty of "intoxication" on charges preferred by Brigadier General Smolley Butler, "dry crusader" of the fighting devil dogs.

Holding the verdict of the court martial before which Williams was tried at San Diego, Wilbur sentenced him to a loss of four numbers in the grade of Colonel, thereby dropping him from 21st place to 25th place on the Marine corps promotion list.

Williams was likewise ordered released from arrest and to be restored to active service. No place of duty was assigned the convicted officer, who is still at San Diego.

The sentence, was viewed in Marine circles as extremely light, as imposed on Williams in view of his former exemplary record, it was explained. It was his first offense since entering the service, Secretary Wilbur said.

Wilbur's order, sustaining the guilty verdict, climaxed one of the most sensational "liquor cases" brought to public attention since the advent of prohibition.

Williams' arrest was ordered by Butler, shortly after the general had quit as "dry czar" in Philadelphia to assume command of the Marine base at San Diego.

At the trial, Butler testified that Williams had embarrassed him by inviting him to be the guest of him at a private dinner party at Williams' home at which pre-Volstead cocktails occupied a prominent place on the menu.

The fiery general, who won his spurs for gallantry in action, said he had to dodge out of the room while the other guests, unruffled by the "dry complex," consumed the tempting cocktails.

After the party, Butler said Col. Williams appeared in his presence, unmistakably drunk, at the Coronado hotel, Coronado Beach, Cal., and taunted Butler to prefer charges against him. It was this offense for which Williams was convicted.

The incident created a tremendous stir throughout the entire Marine corps, Butler's action for accusing his host being heatedly attacked. Senator "Jim" Reed later referred to him as General "Smelly" Butler.

Throughout the whole proceeding, the "fighting Quaker" defended his course on the ground of duty.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Richards, accompanied by their son and daughter, Ernest and Lucille, have left for Sacramento and Grass Valley in their new machine to spend the week-end.

BOOSTER BODY TO MEET HERE

The manufacturing situation from a standpoint of getting more payroll industries, both on the harbor frontage and on the upland sites along the railroads, the future of the harbor itself and matters pertaining generally to the advancement of the city will be talked over at a public meeting of the Board of Governors of the Richmond Industrial Commission at the Den O' Sweets banquet floor, Monday, May 24 at 12:30.

The Industrial Commission reports a most promising outlook for the acquisition of additional payroll activities and expects still further substantial results this year from the work being done. The major work being done by the San Francisco Bridge Company will also help attract capital to the harbor.

At once by the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company will focus the eyes of the manufacturing interests, both of the Pacific Coast and the East on Richmond because of the importance of this great company and the magnitude of its work in Richmond.

"We should take full advantage of all these big developments," he states, "let the world know about them and secure other enterprises through the attention they will draw to Richmond. Our outlook was never better."

Blame Pilsudski For Trouble in Polish Politics

(By Universal Service)
KARL H. VON WEIGAND
(Copyright 1926, Universal Service)
WARSAW, May 21.—(By courier to border to avoid censor—via Berlin)—Poland is a political powder barrel with a slow, set fuse.

That is the situation on the eve of the meeting of the national assembly called in extraordinary session to elect a President in place of Stanislas Wojciechowski, forcibly overthrown and forced to resign following the military revolt led by Marshal Joseph Pilsudski.

On the surface things are quiet. Underneath there is heavy rumbling among the masses which may lead to other explosions. There are many voices declaring that through his half measures Marshal Pilsudski, shrinking from making himself dictator after the sacrifice of so many lives, and endeavoring to cover his violence to the constitution with a cloak of legality, threatens to make the bad political mess in Poland worse instead of better.

The situation has resulted in giving the Marshal a reputation of being a weak man who really failed in the very crisis he himself precipitated.

In an open letter to Pilsudski, the national organizations in the so-called German Poland, which is otherwise strongly hostile to him, demand that he take the consequences of his anti-constitutional action by taking over the dictatorship.

His fluctuating weakness, however, is credited with causing him a loss of confidence in many quarters. If reports in diplomatic circles usually well informed may be credited, Marshal Pilsudski has suffered something like a nervous collapse following his coup d'etat on account of the loss of life, especially among women and children. He had not expected any resistance whatever in his program to seize the government.

All efforts of the many foreign correspondents now here to see the victorious Marshal have thus far failed.

Barney Aloisio who is in charge of the Scioto's Barn Dance to be held at East Shore Park on June 5 reported that all is in readiness for the event.

Jack Sonnet's orchestra has been engaged for this event and he declares that he will have a number of spicy selections to be played.
